The elements of living well include good health and intact sensory faculties. The ability to hear, breathe and smell are important components of basic life experience. There are many possible causes of hearing loss such as ear infections, genetic conditions or even nose and ear cancers. Similarly, various nasal conditions may result in obstruction and a decreased sense of smell. CGH's multi-disciplinary team comprising specialists and audiology team of Ear, Nose & Throat (ENT) aims to provide better understanding of ear and nose problems to members of the public through this forum.

This forum is organised by the Department of Otolaryngology, ENT.
